Synopsis

Discover all the available information from the declassified KGB archives, including Stalin's obsession with UFOs and the secret Soviet reports on Nazi UFOs, as well as the documented cases from the days of the tsarist police to the present. The Soviet UFO Files covers the most exciting and impressive cases dealing with unidentified flying objects in Russia and the Soviet Union.

The book covers it all, from the first reports made by tsarist police to the Tunguska Event, the Robozero case, Stalin's personal obsession with flying saucers, the reports on Nazi UFOs, the Dalnegorsk Crash, the TU-134, the Vortech sightings, the disturbing incidents during the Chechen wars, and the mysterious attempts by the Soviets to study the small Phobos moon of Mars.

Paul Stonehill y Philip Mantle, UFO experts, have brought together a selective collection of secret documents to give the reader a better idea of the social and historical context in which the documented events occurred. They also look at how the Cold War played its role in this area of study that seemed so distant from the political reality of the times
