WITH ALL MY HEART

Yellow journalism unmasked: Who killed Tiaguín Moltó, the most emblematic tabloid journalist? Among celebrities is the murderer. Intrigue, mystery and death in the tabloid world

Santiago Moltó had a plan. He was to return in style and this time cleverer than ever. Politicians, artists, and the rich and famous would have to accept his power once again. He was willing to do anything. Fame was a dark yet desired memory that he could not get rid of. His name had disappeared in the newspapers, magazines, and television, as did the glamour now that the ephemeral glitter of the flashes had stopped. And of him, this once great journalist master, there only remained an obese shadow, drunk and miserable. They never forgave him for uncovering the big Finansa fraud in which the government, opposing party and the Church were all involved. They took everything away from him so that he was forgotten. But this time he could not fail. He was going to return and he had a plan. However, he never carried it out. His body was found decomposed, with the face rotting next to a golf club that marked his final destiny.
