Historical essay

Carlos Díaz Sánchez

Discover the battles which changed the fate of the great civilizations. Details of the troops, weapons and tactics of the most brilliant generals, Ramses II, Alexander the Great or Julio Caesar. Egyptians against Hittites, Greeks against Persians, Romans against Dacians: the exciting history of the wars that decided the course of history.

Synopsis

Megiddo, Kadesh, silvers, Thermopylae, Gaugamela, Cannas, Alesia... Armed conflicts have always been the favourite way of legitimisation among different cultures. Brief History of the Ancient Battles takes the reader right into the view of the problems that some Pharaohs had when facing the outside world; how the Greeks fought for their way of life against the Persians, or how Rome managed to have such a vast territory in such a short period of time.

Following an itinerary of the different battles the reader will be able to analyse the development of the great cultures (Egyptian, Greek and Roman), from their peak until their downfall.

Brief History of the Ancient Battles is a synthesis of the great conflicts that marked the development of ancient history. Learn about the conflicts that marked the evolution of the classical world, thanks to historical and archaeological documentation of the past cultures.

Sales pitch

- Brief History of the Ancient Battles is an essay that explains the most important war clashes of Egypt, Greece and Rome. Major conflicts such as the battle of Megiddo, the Greco-Persian wars or Peloponnesian wars that laid the foundations of the war policy from the Middle Ages onwards

- The book covers more than two thousand years of History (from the battle of Megiddo, 15th century BC to the battle of Adrianople in 378 AC, which became the major defeat of Rome) becoming a study of antiquity seen as a large board in which the great civilisations played the hegemony in the world. A trial in which the reader will learn about the great victories and defeats of the Empires of Antiquity.

- In this work the author reveals some of the most important warlike events of all time: the history, development, and consequences of the Medic wars, the battle of Actium, the Punic Wars, the battle of Thermopylae, the battle of Marathon, the Peloponnesian wars... and discover the causes of the glory of these powers, and the rise of powerful military leaders such as Trajan, Pompey, Caesar, Octavio, Marco Antonio or Alexander the Great.
