

HITLER'S DOCTORS

Manuel Moros

The medical crimes of the Third Reich and its policy of creating an Aryan super race lead to mass massacres in the extermination camps, outrageous clinical trials and heinous medical experiments.

Synopsis

A new perspective on Nazism as "applied biology", which analyzes in detail the several circumstances that made that most of the German medical community play a crucial role in the policy of extermination of the regime.

Hitler's Doctors is a detailed and accurate analysis of the plans for the extermination of disabled children and mentally ill persons, coordinated and implemented by doctors, that led to mass murder in death camps and ghastly medical experiments carried out by renowned professionals.

A thorough analysis of the crucial role played by most of the medical community in the policy of extermination of lesser races and the creation of an Aryan super race. A journey through all the aspects of Hitler's biopolitics of extermination; from the early eugenics movement in Germany, the publication of Mein Kampf, the forced sterilization programs, the Aktion 4, the inoculations of malaria, the experiments with mustard gas... to the proceedings that stopped these practices.

Sales pitch

- This work sheds light into the most sinister episode of the history of medicine: the complicity of most of the German medical community in the policy of destruction of lesser races and the creation of an Aryan super race. A book that reviews the most unknown Nazi crimes which were allegedly committed for the benefit of science.

- The book not only gives us the medical description of the experiments, but also explains the complex structure of the Nazi health system in a very simple and comprehensive manner.

- It analyzes in depth the mentality of German doctors before and during the Nazi era and the circumstances that led to the enthusiastic support of the Nazi proposals by most of the medical community.

- The author exposes the doctrines, myths and theories that shaped the destructive ideology of Hitler, drawing a straight line from Darwin to Auschwitz.

- It is a topical issue that obliges us to do an ethical review of medicine, especially now that the conscientious objection of doctors is on everyone's lips.
